OFFICIAL DENIAL OF RUMOUR THAT STERLING IS TIED TO FRANC

U.S. TO ACT ON SILVER

PRODUCER'S INTERPRETATION OF AGREEMENT

Plan Criticised As Inadequate.

METAL MUST BE RECOGNISED
AS BASIC MONEY

Salt Lake City, To-day.
Asserting that no silver plan is sound which does not recognise silver as basic money, Mr. Montferri, President of the American Silver Producers' Association, yesterday declared that independent action by the United States was indicated quite definitely in the new silver agreement.

"It is inconceivable that our delegates to the World Economic Conference, a few of whom understand the silver question, could be induced to agree to any plan failing to recognise silver as primary money," he declared.

"Our delegates carried to London the expressed admonition of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives to labour untiringly for such recognition. Nothing short of that will meet with the approval of Congress."

A mere cartel treating silver as a commodity only, was wholly inadequate, although as a preliminary step it may perhaps be helpful. Mr. Montferri declared.—Reuter.

NEBULOUS SILVER PACT

Mexico Pessimistic
Of Results.

Mexico City, To-day.
Despite the fact that Senor Alberto J. Pani, Mexican Minister of Finance, is a signatory to the World Economic Conference silver agreement, high silver authorities in Mexico are somewhat pessimistic, believing the pact to be nebulous.

Mexico might benefit substantially if the silver price suits the dollar exchange, but the authorities are of the opinion that artificial inflation of prices by agreement, has never been a success.—Reuter.

MORE SILVER VIEWS Restrictions On Metal Exchange Urged.

Denver, Colorado, To-day.
Commenting on the new silver agreement, Mr. W. W. Price, ex-President of Colorado Springs Mining Stock Exchange, expressed an opinion that it is a compact to "take the control of the silver market from selfish monopolists in London and New York."

Mr. James A. Donahue, a well-known broker, stated that the agreement exceeded expectations. The action now wanted was for the Government to forbid scrambling on the New York Metal Exchange and to limit investors to actual transactions in silver bullion.—Reuter.

The rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. to-day was 0.38 inches, making a total since January 1 of 33.91 inches, against an average of 49.20 inches.

WORK FOR 6,000,000 JOBLESS BY SEPTEMBER 1

Final Response To Mr. Roosevelt's
Unemployment Appeal

Washington, To-day.
Employment for between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 new workers by September 1, is predicted by the Director of the National Industry Recovery Administration, General Hugh S. Johnson.

General Johnson bases his estimate on the responses to President Roosevelt's appeal.—Reuter.

JAPAN MAY CHALLENGE FRENCH CLAIM

Islands Between P.I.
And Indo-China.

TOKYO STUDIES QUESTION

Tokyo, To-day.
The possibility that Japan may contest the French claim to the islands between Indo-China and the Philippines is indicated in the Foreign Office, where it is revealed that the Government is studying the question.

It is also revealed that on three occasions since 1918 enterprising Japanese, interested in these islands, had petitioned to the Government to claim them, but that, hitherto, no action had been taken.—Reuter.

NANKING SENDS ENVOY TO FENG

Hopes Of A Peaceful Settlement.

Peking, To-day.
The Chinese press declares that a special delegate from Nanking, carrying an autograph letter from Mr. Wang Ching-wei, left for Kalgan yesterday to see General Feng Yu-shiang.

The passage of time is recognised as being helpful toward a peaceful settlement, and hopes are rising that hostilities can be averted.—Reuter.

RAILWAY TRACK BOMBED

Attempt To Wreck
Train.

GOVERNOR OF BENGAL
ESCAPES PLOT

Calcutta, To-day.
An attempt to wreck the train in which Sir John Anderson, P.C., G.C.B., G.C.I.E., K.C.B., C.B., Governor of Bengal, was returning from Faridpur, Calcutta, was made at a wayside station yesterday.

When the pilot engine, preceding the train, entered the station, a bomb exploded. The railway track, however, was not damaged, and the Governor's train passed the spot safely.—Reuter.

PROSPECTS FOR TWELFTH EXCELLENT

London, To-day.
Reports from the Scottish and English moors indicate that the grouse shooting prospects for the twelfth are the best for many years.—British Wireless Service.

BRITAIN'S POLICY

PREVENTION OF EXCHANGE FLUCTUATIONS

Avoiding Speculative Influences.

TREASURY STATEMENT

London, To-day.
In a Parliamentary answer, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. L. Horne-Belisha, yesterday, stated that there is no truth in any suggestion that sterling is tied to the franc.

The policy of Government is to prevent frequent and wide fluctuations in exchange due to purely speculative influences, he declared. No inference can be drawn from the fact that fluctuations in the gold value of sterling are not very wide at this particular time.

He added that there is no reason to suppose that the Dominion Governments or the Governments of the countries in the sterling area see any objection to this policy.—British Wireless Service.

FIRM TONE RULES LONDON MARKET.

Industrial Issues Show
Good Gains.

London, To-day.
The London stock markets yesterday closed with a firm appearance. Appreciable gains by several industrial and trans-Atlantic favourites under American influence were recorded.

Argentine railways closed strong, but German railways sagged. Oils, rubber and gold shares were better.

British funds showed little change, war loan, 3 1/2 per cent, closing at 99 1/16.—British Wireless Service.

3 HOURS' TRADING IN CHICAGO.

U.S. Stock Exchange
Restrictions.

Chicago, To-day.
Chicago Stock Exchange trading in future, is to be confined between the hours of 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. (Central Times), to conform with the new hours now in operation on the New York Exchange.—Reuter.

WALL STREET NOT IMPRESSED

Silver Market Rules
Featureless.

SHARES DECLINE

New York, To-day.
The New York Market is impressed but little with the World Economic Conference silver agreement. The metal ruled featureless on Wall Street yesterday. Commission houses liquidated and the trade and banks bought.

Reactionary tendencies showed themselves in the general market yesterday, but in certain quarters it is thought that they will not develop into a serious decline in the immediate future. The cotton market opened higher, but eased off later in sympathy with the grain.—(Continued on Page 12)

FUTURE OF WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Committee Appointed To Make
Decision Before November 1

London, To-day.
The Bureau of the World Economic Conference has agreed to appoint a small committee to decide on the future meeting of the Conference.

The committee is to decide on or before November 1, whether or not the Conference shall be again convened.—British Wireless Service.

JAPAN'S TRADE COMPETITION WITH BRITAIN

Discussion In India
Proposed.

THREE COUNTRIES TO REVIEW
TEXTILE INDUSTRY

London, To-day.
In a statement regarding the possible convening of a conference between British and Japanese industrialists in connection with Japanese trade competition, the Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade, Dr. F. L. Burgin, said that a reply was sent on July 20 to the note from the Japanese Government on this subject received some little time ago.

In that note the Japanese Government indicated that the Japanese interests concerned had agreed, subject to certain limitations which had since formed the subject of an informal discussion, to the proposed meetings between industries as far as they might relate to cotton textiles.

The proposal under consideration is that there should be a tripartite discussion in India in the near future, between representatives of the industries concerned, of Lancashire, India and Japan, covering the whole field of all classes of textiles in which these countries are interested. These discussions will relate to the Indian market and to the British Colonial markets in which India is interested.—(Continued on Page 4.)

TANGSHAN TAKEN OVER.

Order In The North.

Peking, To-day.
Tangshan was finally taken over by the Chinese yesterday afternoon, the Head of the Public Safety Bureau entering into his duties. The other districts are expected to follow suit to-day and to-morrow.—Reuter.

ENGLAND BEAT IRELAND AT GOLF

London, To-day.
England beat Ireland by 14 matches to 4 in an international golf match played at Belfast yesterday.—British Wireless Service.

Italianisation Of Malta Feared By British M.P.

London, To-day.
The situation in Malta was the subject of questions addressed in the House of Commons yesterday to Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary of State for the Colonies. Asked if he were aware that in regard to teaching of English and Italian, the people were growing exceedingly anxious at the growing Italianisation of this British Colony, the Minister said that the

ATTEMPT TO RISE 17 MILES ABOVE GROUND

U.S. Balloonist To Fly Alone.

PICCARD NOT JOINING ATTEMPT

New York, To-day.
In order to permit the carrying of more scientific instruments, Professor Jean Piccard, twin-brother to Professor Auguste Piccard, the well-known Belgian scientist, will not accompany Lieut.-Com. T.G.W. Settle, of the United States Navy, on his attempt to rise 17 miles into the stratosphere.

Lieut.-Com. Settle will make the attempt solo, using a hermetically sealed ball made of "down-metal," weighing 14 stone.

Prof. Auguste Piccard holds the present altitude record. On August 18, last year, together with his assistant, M. Max Cosyns, Prof. Piccard ascended 10 1/2 miles, beating the record he set in 1931, by 919 meters.—Reuter.

STERILISATION IN GERMANY

Hitler's New Law For The Unfit.

DECISION TO REST WITH DOCTORS

Berlin, To-day.
The Hitler Cabinet will shortly sanction a law for the sterilisation of unfit people. The law provides for persons such as incurable drunkards, sexual criminals, lunatics and sufferers from any incurable disease that can be passed on to their offspring, to be sterilised compulsorily if the College of Doctors decides by a majority, that the operation is necessary for the welfare of the nation.

An appeal against any decision may be made to the Upper Court of Health, which is to be constituted.—Reuter.

SIR ROBERT HO TUNG ILL.

H. R. H. the Prince of Wales beat Lady Astor in the semi-final of the Parliamentay golf handicap at Walton Heath, Surrey, on June 23, by 2 and 1. The Prince wore a blue check shirt, grey plus-fours and check stockings. (S. & G.)

ENGINE TROUBLE

Balbo Thanks Roosevelt

Shediac, New Brunswick, To-day.

With the exception of one of the planes which landed at Rockland, Maine, owing to minor engine trouble, General Balbo's air armada arrived from New York—a distance of 650 miles—at 8.56 p.m. (British Standard Time) yesterday.

While flying over the Canadian border, General Balbo wirelessly to President Roosevelt thanking him for the many unmistakable signs of friendship and regard afforded to the squadron.

General Balbo has not yet decided whether to fly home by the Northern or the Southern route across the Atlantic. The armada is remaining here for a few days.—Reuter.

7 KILLED IN AIR CRASH.

DUTCH - BRITISH CO-OPERATION

Trade Agreement
Proposed.

LONDON CONVERSATIONS

London, To-day.
The conference of representatives of the British and Dutch cotton industries which began at Manchester in April last, was resumed in London, yesterday.

The conference further explored the possibility of the British and Dutch Governments taking mutually advantageous measures regarding the cotton and allied export trades of both countries.

Certain schemes affecting various markets, including the Dutch East Indies, were closely examined technically, and a common agreement reached regarding representations to their respective Governments.

Further discussions are envisaged to take place shortly.—Reuter.

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD LLD.

London, To-day.
The degree of Doctor of Law was conferred, on behalf of the Manchester University, upon the British Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the ceremony taking place at No. 10 Downing Street.—British Wireless Service.

SHENG AN PIRACY ENQUIRY

Buccaneers Held By Japanese.

MOTIVE FOR CRIME?

Dairen, To-day.
The preliminary enquiry into the piracy of the "Sheng An," which was conducted in camera, has been completed and the authorities are considering when, and in what form, to issue their findings. It appears certain that the trial will be held in Dairen.

In accordance with Japanese law no one, not even officials of the German Consulate, is being allowed access to the prisoners. Foreigners and Japanese here express the opinion that the pirates had not intended to sell the ship's cargo in Valparaiso as was claimed, but that there was a different motive at the bottom of the crime, one of the theories being that the buccaneers had in mind the sale of the vessel to some conniving ship-wrecking concern not far from Dairen.—Reuter.

KING AND QUEEN AT COWES.

Regatta Opens On Monday.

London, To-day.
Their Majesties the King and Queen joined the Royal Yacht "Victoria" and "Albert" at Portsmouth yesterday and later sailed for Cowes, where they will remain during the Regatta which begins on Monday.

Strengthen those weakened Nerves

SO TYPICAL ARE MOST OF the symptoms of "nervousness" that you can quite easily recognise nerve-weakness in yourself, your husband or your children. ## Schoolgirl Collar In Capelets

Coat Frock In Navy
Lainage.

Capelets are clever, and one comes as a complete surprise, being an adjustable item to a coat frock in bright dark blue lainage, showing a short rolled chemise front of white organdie when the capelet is removed. Navy blue with white organdie and pique is an asset to another youthful dress. The white organdie in this instance is quite plain except for a corded disc border round a deep flat "schoolgirl" collar and wide gauntlet cuffs rising above elbow length sleeves.

A coat frock in navy lainage has for its only ornament a navy and red cord passing in naval fashion under one armhole from a similar cord passing round the neckline.

TO WHITEN THE SKIN.

The Beauty Bib.

On 11 necks out of every dozen you will notice a most unbecoming red "bib" just beneath the throat. To rid themselves of this patch of discoloured, coarsened skin, experts have introduced the "beauty bib."

This is how it is made and worn. Buy some jaconet. Cut it into the shape of a heart. It should measure about 9in. across the top and from 6in. to 7in. deep. Attach tapes so that it can be tied round the neck. Adjust it so that it comes up over the "salt cellars" in the neck.

Big buttons are much easier for the small child to manage than little ones. For this reason they should be used exclusively on his dresses and underclothing. These should open in front or at the sides.

Those Grease Stains!

To remove grease or oil stains on georgette of any colour take a white soft cloth (a clean old handkerchief will do), moisten it with eucalyptus oil and rub gently on the stain with a circular motion. Then leave the garment to dry thoroughly in open air, if possible. The oil may take several hours to evaporate completely, so don't use more than is absolutely necessary. Georgette frocks of several colours have been cleaned in this way, without a failure.

FROCK WITH TWO COATS.

Morning Ensemble With Change-Overs.

A morning ensemble is provided with two slack three-quarter length coats to wear as a change over a neat little tailored frock of brown and greige checked lainage. One coat is unbelted in checked lainage to match, while the plain greige lainage coat carries a belt between two patch pockets posed at the breast and hip line at one side only.

Preserving Young Hands

"Lemon" Glove
Treatment.

You may have heard about the Spanish "lemon" gloves for whitening the hands.

This treatment is on the same principle but cleverer.

Buy some cheap cotton gloves, large enough not to impede the circulation. Saturate them with lemon cream. Pull them on and wear them for a couple of hours whenever you can spare the time. To prevent the grease oozing out wear another pair of gloves large enough to cover the gloved hands comfortably.

This not only whitens the hands but keeps the skin "young," supple, and prevents roughness and redness during winter time.

Radiate Health.

And so do the children of the parents who rely upon them. Baby's Own Tablets children are always happy, vigorous and sturdy. This splendid remedy was specially designed by a qualified medical practitioner to provide a general, all-round health-safeguard for babies and children up to about seven years of age. Administered at the first signs of "off colour," falling appetite or irritability, Baby's Own Tablets soon set matters right and thus frequently prevent the development of more serious conditions.

Baby's Own Tablets are a speedy but gentle corrective for infantile indigestion and constipation, relieve flatulence, colic, cramp, convulsions, allay feverishness, break up colds, check diarrhoea, expel worms. All wise parents keep their children fit by occasionally administering this pleasant-tasting, gentle, laxative and stomach-cleansing remedy. Obtainable from reputable chemists everywhere.

CINEMA NOTES

MAIL REVIEW

"JUST MY LUCK"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

Starring Ralph Lynn and Winifred Shottor, "Just My Luck," now showing at the Central Theatre, is a screen adaptation of the Aldwych farce, "Fifty-Fifty."

The story affords Ralph Lynn characteristic screen material, and the outdoor locations, particularly the race-course scenes, extend the interest far beyond the possibilities of the stage.

Ralph Lynn is seen as a timid music teacher. A chance meeting with a prosperous business man changes his outlook in life, and adorning himself as a well-dressed business man, he rushes onward to trouble and success. His interpretation of the character is excellent and Winifred Shottor shows great advance as a screen actress.

MAIL REVIEW

"WHAT, NO BEER"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"What, No Beer," now showing at the Queen's Theatre, provides unusual comedy and entertainment.

In this picture Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante, try to run a brewery. They become involved with the local beer-running factions and end up with the police raiding their plant. The situation is further complicated when Buster falls in love with the sweetheart of one of the beer barons, believing her to be a sweet young society girl.

These two comedians are as usual hilariously funny, and are fortunate in having so happy a vehicle for their riotous antics. Phyllis Barry, the young English actress, is seen at her best in the romantic-comedy part of the story.

MAIL REVIEW

"THE THIRD STRING"—KING'S THEATRE.

"The Third String," now showing at the King's Theatre, is an excellent comedy based on the story by W. W. Jacobs, and introduces his celebrated characters, Ginger Dick, Peter Russet and Sam Small. The film is amusing and holds the interest of the audience from beginning to end.

The plot concerns the efforts of a lovelorn sailor, Ginger Dick, to win the favour of a barmaid of the local inn. He is forced into a boxing-match with one of her admirers, a ferocious pugilist, whom he knocks out after a thrilling encounter. After the match, however, the sly little barmaid elopes with her third string, the landlord of the inn where she is employed.

Sandy Powell, as Ginger Dick, plays his part well, and has the support of Alf Goddard, as the pugilist, and Kay Hammond, as the barmaid.

MAIL REVIEW

"EMMA"—ORIENTAL THEATRE.

The story of a faithful old family servant is told in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayor's production "Emma" now showing at the Oriental Theatre. Marie Dressler and Jean Hersholt are the leading players. Humour is well balanced in this dramatic film of American family life.

"THE W PLAN"—STAR THEATRE.

Graham Seton's great spy drama "The W Plan" presented by British International Pictures, is now showing at the Star Theatre, on its second local release. The exploits of a British army officer who goes over the German lines to investigate the mysterious inverted M plan, culminate in a series of exciting moments. Brian Aberne, Madeleine Carroll, Gibb McLaughlin and Gordon Harker, are the principals of a fine cast. Worth seeing!

RUFFS AND HONOUR TRICKS.

(By ELY CULBERTSON).

The potency of distribution in making naught of the power of honour-tricks is illustrated in the hand below. The bidding by which East and West reached their game contract may perhaps be open to criticism. In fact, West displayed unusual optimism which was only redeemed by the accuracy of the play. South, with 3 sure trump tricks, could not be blamed for his Double of the game contract, nor for his rueful acceptance of the mysteries of distribution when that contract was made. South—Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

1—West hopes his partner can give a spade or heart response.
2—Seeking to shut out the exchange of information between East and West and prepared to accept a penalty with his weak hand and even distribution.
3—Again a Double for a Take-out.
4—East knows that his partner is prepared for a spade Takeout. He therefore reluctantly bids his three-card spade suit.
5—West's bid of four spades would be justified if East's response had been free and not forced. While the hand is strong, it is an extremely optimistic bid.

South opens the King of clubs, although as the cards lie it happens that he could even have taken three rounds of trumps and that East would still have made his contract, as the remaining spade in

LITERARY CONTEST FOR OLYMPICS

German Government's Innovation.

Berlin. The German Government intends to include a literary contest in the Olympic Games of 1936, which are expected to be held in Germany. It hopes that other countries will follow this example at future Olympiads.

The subject of this "spiritual contest" will be confined to a drama—in the language of the country where the Olympiad takes place—dealing with the eternal problems of the human race, Freedom, Love, Beauty, and God—Reuter.

Dummy would have proved an effective barrier against the run of the club suit, and the Dummy and the closed hand between them had all the tricks in diamonds and hearts. With a club Opening East played the hand to make his doubled contract by utilizing Dummy's trumps to ruff four of his losing clubs, using the Queen and Knave of hearts and trumping the third round of hearts to secure entry to his own hand, thus making 5 trump tricks, two hearts and three diamonds for game.

Meers, E. A. Pierce &amp; Co. Report:—We think that the reactionary tendencies which showed themselves this afternoon will not develop into a full-fledged reaction in the immediate future. From a day to day trading standpoint we would suggest some purchases on any irregularities to-morrow.

Wheat: The subsidence of distressed liquidation encouraged some replacing of long lines by belated shorts. Miller brokers bought. Canadian crop news is unfavourable. Cotton: Opened higher and continued to advance on a demand from the trade, due to too much rain in the Central Belt. The market eased later in sympathy with the Stock Market. The decline caught stop-orders and the Trade bought more freely. Silver: Featureless to-day. Commission Houses liquidated and the Trade and Banks bought. The market was not much impressed by the Silver Agreement in London. Until further notice the New York Silver Exchange opens at eleven and closes at two. The market will be closed this Saturday, though the commodity markets will be open on Saturday as usual.

NEWSPRINT PRODUCTION IN CANADIAN MILLS

Distinct Advance Shown In April.

BIGGEST PRODUCER IN WORLD

Ottawa, Canada.

For the first time in several months the production of newsprint in Canadian mills in April showed a distinct advance.

The output was 147,759 tons compared with 137,078 tons in March. An increase was recorded both in domestic consumption and in sales to foreign countries. Shipments from the mills during April totalled 161,266 an increase of over 20,000 on March shipments.

These figures offer some encouragement to an industry which has been suffering in the past few years.

Uneconomic competition among the large newsprint manufacturing companies has driven prices down to a level which makes it exceedingly difficult for many of the companies to continue to operate.

The conditions surrounding the paper manufacturing industry present one of the most serious problems for the people of Canada. The industry is a large one, representing a huge capital investment and paper from Canadian newsprint mills is shipped to nations throughout the world. The markets, however, have been curtailed through world economic conditions, while prior to the decline in trade the manufacturing capacity of Canadian mills had been increased.

The expansion of the industry was due to the natural advantages which Canada possesses through its large resources of timber suitable for paper making and its cheap conveniently situated hydro-electric power.

The expansion, however, was too great and the mills have increased the difficulties of the situation by price cutting policies. It is hoped that with a change in the tide of trade that these difficulties will be removed or alleviated.

Canada's production of newsprint is twice as large as that of any other country in the world.

A NEW MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

Neo-Bechstein May Replace Piano.
RESEMBLES AN ORGAN.

The Neo-Bechstein which may, in the course of a few years supersede the pianoforte as we know it to-day, is, in outward appearance just like an ordinary pianoforte, but it has so many new features, employs so many principles new to the pianoforte that it may be justly regarded as a new instrument.

In the first place, hammers and the sounding-board, as they were understood in the pianoforte proper, have disappeared—the strings are set in vibration by hammers, it is true, but the impulses are conveyed by electro-magnets to a loud-speaker through which the tone is produced. This loud speaker may be set beside the pianoforte or at any reasonable distance from it.

Like an Organ.

In tone the Neo-Bechstein closely resembles the ordinary Bechstein Grand, but it has certain important differences. In the first place one of the great limitations of the pianoforte is that from the moment at which a note has been struck the tone diminishes steadily. It is impossible to hold any note or any chord at the same intensity for any time—a crescendo on a held note or chord is quite out of the question. Not so with the Neo-Bechstein. It has a swell pedal which produces a result approximately that of the swell pedal of an organ, and once the chord has been struck it can be diminished or increased in tone absolutely at will.

Again, there are certain differences of tone between a Neo-Bechstein and the ordinary pianoforte. In its upper registers the Neo-Bechstein has a tone quality at times like that of a celesta, in its lower registers it is fuller and clearer than the ordinary pianoforte. Then in playing it is a different instrument, for whereas the technique of playing a pianoforte, is dependent upon the purely percussive nature of the instrument, the Neo-Bechstein is not a percussive instrument pure and simple, the fingering must, for certain passages, be closer to that which one employs for the organ.

ENGLAND'S BATTLES SINCE 1066.

Exhibition Of Prints.

London.

The first exhibition of the collection of English military battle prints recently presented to the nation by Col. C. de W. Crookshank, M.P., was opened at the Royal United Service Museum, Whitehall, recently. The museum authorities have decided to show the collection in sections.

The collection is the fruit of twenty-five years of patient work, and in making it over to the nation Col. Crookshank has realised his life ambition "to give to the Army and to the nation the nucleus of a pictorial record worthy of the amazing feats of arms of our Empire in every part of the world."

Included in the exhibition are many rarities showing valuable details of contemporary dress, equipment and topography. Among these may be mentioned a large plate of Culloden published within six months of the battle. There is also another print of Culloden together with a small issue of the same plate, the title of which has been altered to "The Battle of Tournay, 1793." The latter is only one of several interesting and ingenious fakes of which there are specimens. Prints illustrating the American War of Independence will be the chief feature of the first exhibition.

The collection covers the period from 1066 until the last quarter of the nineteenth century, when photography and process methods were established.

Original Viennese Comedy

Plays That Attract Austrian Audiences

"MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING"

(By Sydney W. Carroll.)

On the occasion of my recent visit to Vienna I saw a number of interesting plays. One of the most original in idea and treatment was a comedy called "Money Isn't Everything," by Ladislav Bus-Fekete.

I saw this on a Sunday night at the Deutsches Volkstheater, when even the standing accommodation was crowded to its limit and no seat appeared to be unoccupied.

The play calls for a revolving stage, showing as it does the complete exterior of a suburban tenement house and revealing at various stages of the action the respective interiors of most of the rooms, from the kitchen and ante-room up to the best parlour.

As the action proceeds the house revolves on an axis, and we are taken in turn to consider the characters and lives of the various occupants.

The popularity of "Money Isn't Everything" in Vienna is probably due to many causes. Vienna, in spite of its many aristocratic associations, is vividly democratic in political colour, and this comedy might justly be described as a lesson to employers of domestic labour. Its plot is concerned chiefly with domestic service and the manners and customs of masters and mistresses, as well as those of the people who come under their control.

A Damsel in Distress.

Into the strange conglomeration of humanity which inhabits our house comes a well-born and well-educated, pretty girl, who happens to have struck bad times. She is a young lady who passed all her school examinations with distinction, but now unfortunately has been turned upon the world and is unable to find a post. She is without even enough money to buy a crust of bread. In this emergency, what more natural thing than she should turn to her old friend, the employment agent on the ground floor, to find her a job?

Teacher's work is, alas! out of the question. Any kind of position in the higher grades seems impossible for her to secure. She will take anything, and in the end the only thing that turns up, and this she accepts, is a job as a parlourmaid.

Marie finds a post on the first floor up above, and becomes immediately the object of an amorous gentleman's persecution. Marie, however, soon finds a manly protector in a footballer who resides in the basement, and one of the most amusing scenes in the comedy is where, in return for other services rendered, Marie rewards the footballer by teaching him social etiquette—the proper way to eat peas and the proper way to speak the language. In several diverting situations she proves her skill as a teacher and her charm as a woman, and life, in spite of her menial occupation, takes on an interesting and rosy colour.

I found it a little difficult to understand how Marie got so much time off and why she seemed generally to be engaged not in the execution of household duties, but in teaching the footballer school exercises, or in taking the dogs for promenades, but even authors of comedies like these have their little idiosyncrasies.

Final Flare-Up.

Finally, there is a flare-up, in which Marie shows the more offensive people in the building just where they get off. The flirtatious husband is put in his proper place, so is the bullying mistress and the immoral landlord.

Yes! Money isn't everything. What matters in the world is a loving heart, courage, and discipline. There are no real differences in human beings. The daughter of a doctor and the daughter of a footballer should be on absolute equality. I have, perhaps, in telling the story of this entertaining social diversion, done it some injustice. For although the author has decorated his situations and his dialogue with a certain amount of saccharine sentimentality, he is never dull and is frequently most amusing. However much we may agree or disagree with his Socialistic opinions, judging his work outside a political angle and purely as drama, it has a quality of unfailing merriment and sincerity. Its characters appeared to me to be reasonably true, so far as I could judge, to Austrian life, and yet capable of translation into another nationality.

I cannot conceive of it being played anywhere except with the aid of a revolving stage, but someone perhaps with greater vision than I have may think otherwise. I should certainly like to see someone attempt it in the English theatre, because of its originality and obvious desire to ameliorate the lot of the worker.

LONDON FESTIVAL OF MUSIC.

Three Brahms Concerts This Month.

London, May 6.

The year's Festival of Music, organized by the B.B.C., will be held at the Queen's Hall this month. The festival will consist of six concerts, of which the first three, on May 8, 10, and 12, will be devoted to the music of Brahms, whose centenary is to be celebrated this year. Dr. Adrian Boult will conduct all three concerts.

At the first concert Herr Artur Schnabel will play the Second Pianoforte Concerto, and at the third Herr Adolf Busch will be the soloist in the Violin Concerto. Three symphonies will be included—the Fourth on May 8; the First on May 10; and the Second on May 12. The programmes also include the Tragic Overture at the first concert; the Haydn Variations and the Second Serenade on May 10; and the Academic Festival Overture on May 12.

The second week, with concerts on May 15, 17, and 19, will be conducted by M. Koussevitzky. The first programme will be divided between Prokofiev, Sibelius, and Tchaikovsky, whose Symphonic Classics, Seventh and Fifth symphonies are to be played. English music will be presented on May 17 by Walton's Overture, "Portsmouth Point" and Bak's Second Symphony.

The last programme will be devoted to Beethoven, the Fourth and Ninth symphonies, with Miss Rita Ginster, Miss Muriel Brunskill, Mr. Frank Titterton, Mr. Harold Williams, and the B.B.C. Chorus joining forces with the orchestra. The orchestra throughout the festival will be the B.B.C. Symphony Orchestra.

KING SEES CRAZY VARIETY.

£3,000 For Music Hall Charities.

A VERY FINE SHOW.

The King and Queen and the Duke and Duchess of York were present recently at the eleventh Command Variety Performante at the Palladium.

From the Royal box, turned into a glorious bower of flowers—starlike golden irises set off with deep red carnations—they watched the cream of English variety giving their best, and, judging by their laughter, a well appreciated best.

The Duke and Duchess were the first to arrive, the Duchess wearing a flowing gown of her favourite pale crushed strawberry, with a coat of white and pink brocade velvet.

The arrival of the King and Queen was heralded by cheers from afar off, and they descended from their car amid a roar of welcome. The Queen wore under a long coat of embroidered white silk a dress of powder blue chiffon, embroidered with shining spangles, and a tiara of diamonds and sapphires.

The King was attended by the Earl of Dunmore, V.C., and Col. Reginald Seymour, and the Queen by Lady Desborough.

Inquiry For Ill Conductor.

With his customary kindly thought, the King, as he entered the Royal box inquired at once about Mr. Richard Crean, musical director of the theatre, who was taken seriously ill and rushed to hospital just before the dress rehearsal.

"I was so sorry to hear about about poor Mr. Crean," he said. "I hear he has had a transfusion of blood, and I do hope he is going on well."

Mr. George Black, the manager, said the latest news was that Mr. Crean was a little better, and the King expressed his pleasure.

Then Mr. George Dason, the first violinist, who was deputising for Mr. Crean, struck up the National Anthem, and after this had been heartily sung by the whole audience standing, the performance began.

It was the first time the King and Queen had seen "Crazy Variety," and the King's verdict on it as he left was: "A very fine show; a most enjoyable evening."

Flower For Royal Box.

There was an amusing incident during a Hampstead Heath Bank holiday scene. A number of old songs were sung, and then Teddie Knox, in the character of a coster flower seller threw button-holes to people sitting in the stalls. Afterwards he threw a pink carnation to the Royal box.

The flower lodged among the others which decorated the front of the box, and the King leaned forwards towards the Duke of York and apparently asked him to get it. The Duke did so and handed the flower to the King.

Billy Bennett, in his sketch, "Almost a Gentleman," had the success of the evening in amusing the Queen. Throughout his turn her Majesty laughed continually.

She laughed, and so did the King, as the comedian told the audience confidentially how he had gone into a restaurant and asked if they served crabs. "Sit down," replied the waiter, "we serve anybody."

There was a burst of laughter from the King when Billy Bennett described how, when he had found a piece of rubber tyre in his sausage, the restaurant keeper explained that it was put in to show how the motor-car was taking the place of the horse.

Over £3,000 was realised by the performance for the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund and Institution.

MOOSE JAW AND G.B.S.

Mr. Shaw's "Too True to be Good" was as popular in the remotest "one-night stands" in Western Canada as it was in the Eastern cities of the States. Audiences in places like Moose Jaw listened with rapt attention even to the long Einstein speech in the last act.

4,500 During First Year Of Law.

Madrid.

During the first year since divorce was made legal by the Republic 4,500 couples have been divorced. Barcelona, with 1,800, was far in the lead, Madrid divorces totalling only about 800.

In Victoria, a Basque city of 35,000 inhabitants, the divorce courts had a holiday, for no martial bonds were severed and in Segovia, near Madrid, only four cases were handled. Few divorces were sought in Valencia; San Sebastian; Bilbao, Curruña and Oviedo.

Of all the marriages that went on the rocks fewer than 500 were marriages of less than five years' duration, indicating that there were unhappy couples before the Republic passed the divorce law.—Reuter

Ten Years Of Peace.

After many vicissitudes, the Four Power Pact was signed at Rome, after the German Government had notified its acceptance of the final form in which Article 3 had passed the close and prolonged scrutiny of Paris. From the outset, however, it was the assent of France to the phraseology of the new Pact which was hardest to secure. Its principles she cordially accepted, but the subjects to which they are to be applied, and the precise method of their application, occasioned anxious searchings of heart. M. Deladier and his Government were generally favourable to the project of Signor Mussolini, but a powerful section of French opinion has tenaciously opposed the Pact on the broad ground that it involved Revision of treaties, and that Revision meant not Peace but War. They were reinforced by the avowed hostility of Poland and the Little Entente to even the most discreet allusion to Revision, whether implicit or explicit, and this for a time threatened to wreck the scheme. Finally, after repeated redrafting, Revision is left closely shrouded under references to Article 19 of the Covenant. But it is there none the less, and Europe knows it to be there. The original reference to "equality of arms" has undergone a like treatment. This is no longer directly mentioned, but Article 3 provides that if the problem is not solved by the Disarmament Conference the Four Powers will consult together to find a settlement of what proved insoluble at Geneva. The German claim to "equality of arms" would obviously have a place there. It can scarcely be questioned that the cumulative effect of the constant redrafting and the intense reluctance in certain quarters to allude frankly to facts which are ever present in the minds of all was disappointing and disconcerting. The Pact was framed by Signor Mussolini to serve as a Powerful and ready instrument, and was so accepted with enthusiasm by the British Government. After two months of negotiation and adverse criticism, much of it wholly beside the mark, it is greatly changed to the eye. But the Duce could still proudly claim that it remained "faithful in spirit" to the original scheme. Its purpose is to secure ten years' peace for Europe, not by imposing the fiat of "a ruling bloc," but by carefully negotiated and timely removal of the principal causes of friction. It will produce results, great or small, precisely in correspondence with the sincerity of the spirit in which the instrument is employed. It recognises quite frankly that an ill-timed insistence upon the theoretic equality of all members of the League has often tended to obscure the truth that the peace of Europe really rests upon the co-operation of the Four Great Powers. The chief responsibility irrevocably lies upon them. Recently, they were visibly threatening to split asunder or combine into new blocs. The Pact is designed to keep them together, so that they may in unison exercise a moderating influence both upon one another and upon the other States of Europe. This Pact opens a new and broader door to negotiation, or rather it enlarges all the old portals which are to be found in the Covenant and in the various Pacts which have succeeded thereto. It looks towards the appeasement of Franco-Italian rivalries, and it directly associates for the first time the Hitler Government with engagements which bind Germany to the sanctity of treaties as well as to the propriety of taking measures for their reconsideration. Great Britain has sound reason to be gratified with the loyal part her Government has played in seconding Signor Mussolini's noble and successful effort to strengthen the real foundations of European security.

London University.

Not often, even in the history of a city so great as London, can there be a more important foundation-stone than that which the King laid for London University's new home. London University educates a third of the full-time university students in England; and if there be added those taking evening degree courses, or the numerous and important diploma courses, into which so many of the university institutions branch out, its substantial share in Britain's higher teaching would be seen to be much larger. It has, too, particular and ever-growing importance as a great imperial centre. But the University has hitherto had no home and no worthy visible embodiment. Some of its constituent colleges are more fortunate, but the University itself has lived, so to say, in lodgings. Now, after more than twenty years of discussion and the breakdown of many half-achieved schemes, it is to obtain what it has so long lacked. On a site behind the British Museum will rise the very large building which, before it is finished, may cost £3,000,000. So vast a plan has only been made possible by a confluence of "generosities." The largest gifts are those of the Rockefeller Trust, whose help had already been forthcoming on a most munificent scale for more than one of the constituent institutions. The City has also come forward handily, the Corporation promising means and generous bent.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Low-Priced Old Masters.
If Old Masters, reputable and not merely "reputed," are hardly going for an old song nowadays, it is a mistake to suppose that it is impossible to secure a good specimen for under four figures.
At the private view at Messrs. Agnew's galleries recently, there was a collection of 42 not one of which was priced at over £200, and most of them considerably under that figure. Mary Beale's "Portrait of a Lady," for example, is priced £85. Mary Beale painted in the mid-seventeenth century, and is not as well-known as her work deserves.
Sir Godfrey Kneller's portrait of a member of the Burrell family is catalogued £185. This is light in colour. "The cheap Knellers are the dark and muddy ones," it is stated.

A Veteran Governor

Sir Hubert Murray, Lieutenant-governor of Papua, whose annual report of his administration was published recently is a gifted writer and anthropologist, with a passionate interest in the customs of his strange territory. This year he describes the witches of the d'Entrecasteaux Islands, who are supposed to fly over the sea to Port Moresby in coconut shells.

Sir Hubert has ruled British New Guinea for over 35 years, longer than any other governor in the Empire. He measures 6ft. 4in., and at 72 still undertakes long and arduous journeys through the unexplored interior of the islands to visit outlying posts.

In his earlier days his favourite penalty for recalcitrant natives was to make them walk beside him on his rounds. After a few days of this strenuous exercise they were reduced to complete submission.

Facts You Did Not Know.

The shade of a table lamp invented by a German is marked with the hours and fractions and setting an indicator at a mark switches on a radio set when the time is reached.

By placing fins resembling the rudders of aircraft on the funnels of four new passenger steamships New York engineers succeeded in deflecting smoke from the ships' decks.

For household use an automatically controlled electric roaster for coffee beans has been invented.

£100,000 and the various Companies over £70,000. The London County Council's grant and promises total £450,000. There have been five individual contributions—notably £70,000 from Mr. Samuel Courtland to house the institute which he has endowed. There is still room for individuals to do more, and for some years to come the University scheme will furnish a worthy direction for the gifts of men of large means and generous bent.

BRITISH WIVES OF FOREIGNERS EFFECT OF GOVERNMENT'S NEW BILL

"A LITTLE WORSE FOR THEM"

(By Helena Normanton.)

London, June 30.
Startling as it may appear, if Queen Victoria had still been a married woman and not a widow in the year 1870, she would have been changed into a German by virtue of the Naturalisation Act of that year—unless at some prior date the Prince Consort had ever become formally naturalised.

In other words, Parliament could have put us under an alien—albeit British-born—Sovereign.
Until 1870 a British-born woman who married a foreigner remained British. The muddled situation created by the Naturalisation Act (1870), which abolished the old Common Law on the matter, has created a confusion which has gone on increasing ever since. During the Great War that confusion deepened into cruel hardship. In this country alone there were thousands of women married to enemy aliens, 7,000 of them being wives of Germans resident here.

"Their distress was severe... houses often wrecked... turned into the streets... found it impossible to get work... often if sons were serving in the army they were refused dependents' allowances... German-born wives of British subjects were far better off because the German Government provided for them... they were not allowed to go more than five miles from their houses... not allowed to be sent to hospitals near the sea... not allowed to send children to hospitals... &c., to quote from the evidence of Sir Willoughby Dickson (as he then was) before a Royal Commission which sat in 1923.

Ban On The British Born

The Peace caught out those of them who then possessed property even worse. Any property of a German-born woman married to a Briton before February 9, 1920, was exempt from seizure, but any property of a British-born woman married to a German before the same date was subject to seizure, to satisfy the British Government's financial retaliations against Germany.

Even settled property was not exempt—not even property settled with restraint upon anticipation—so that the meagre sums and quite large funds so strictly settled might be actually worth in the market were seized by our Government to make Germany (query—What Germany?) pay for the war. Not even if a son or sons of such propertied women had fought or died on the British side in the war were their British-born mothers' possessions respected.

The civil courts are also closed to alien enemies during the course of hostilities.

Having these hard-teachings before our eyes, one naturally reads the two bills now before the House of Lords and House of Commons respectively to ascertain how far they go towards terminating so deplorable a status for women; who, after all, are flesh of our flesh and bone of our bone.

The Sandeman-Allen bill contains four substantive clauses. "A woman who is a British subject shall not lose or be deemed to lose her British nationality by reason of her marriage with an alien" is its vital clause.

It is the vital thing, the very marrow of all that women have been fighting for years. The position of those women who have already lost their nationality by alien marriages is safeguarded by deeming their return to "British nationality, unless they themselves make a declaration of alienage within a year after the passage of the Act.

On the other hand, alien women in future marrying British subjects will not thereby automatically receive the boon of British citizenship as they do to-day; the position of those who have already thus obtained it being suitably safeguarded.

Sexes Equal Before The Law.
Married or single women are to be competent, just as a man is, to apply for and to receive certificates of naturalisation. Loss of change of British nationality is to occur in just the same circumstances for a woman as for a man.

All this might well be compared with Article 5 of Ordinance No. 202 of the U.S.S.R. Code, which runs:

"When a marriage is concluded between a person who is of Union citizenship and a person who is of foreign citizenship, each retains his or her own citizenship. Change of citizenship of such person can take place by means of a simplified form of procedure to be laid down by Union law."

The whole tendency of modern law is to treat members of the two sexes as juridically equal. Less than that cannot work satisfactorily for more than a short space—if, indeed, it has ever worked well for any. Do British women like to be worse off than those of Soviet Russia in this matter?

However desirable as the bill before the Commons may be from the point of view of the ordinary sensible citizen, it does not represent the present policy of his Majesty's Government, which is now purporting to give effect to a Convention signed at The Hague on April 12, 1930, signed in order to deal with certain aspects of what is known as Conflict of Law. This is another way of saying that what British men and women want is to be sacrificed to a policy of uniformity and alleged international legal neatness.

Women Of No State

Admittedly the Lord Chancellor's British Nationality and Status of Aliens Bill would remove some grievances. It would prevent what is known as the "statelessness" of certain wives. Some countries do not grant their nationality to women who may marry their citizens, so that if a British woman marries, e.g., an American or an Albanian, she does not thereby become an American or Albanian citizen. She does, however, cease to be British and therefore has no status at all.

All kinds of difficulties then confront her—no State need protect her, no State gives her a passport wherewith to travel.

But whether a British woman becomes stateless or foreign, in time of peace she loses her local and parliamentary votes and incurs several other civic disabilities, such as loss of pensions and certain employments. In time of war and during its after consequences she incurs more or less severe treatment, according to whether her husband is a friendly, neutral, or enemy alien.

NUDISTS' SETBACK IN CHICAGO.

City Cannot Afford To Build Stockade.

Chicago, Illinois.
Ten thousand Nudist fans can't have a stockade in a public park here behind which to go sun bathing.

"The chief reason for turning down the proposal" said the President of the Board of Commissioners, "was the cost of the stockade. It would have to be built of lumber absolutely free of knot holes and to prevent persons from spying down from high apartments nearby, it would have had to be a skyline affair."—Reuter.

JAPANESE PROPOSALS FOR OLYMPIAD.

Suggestions For 1934 Far Eastern Games Are Accepted.

The executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation approved in principle Japan's proposals regarding the conduct of the 1934 Far Eastern Championship Games in a special meeting held recently in the office of J. Vargas, a ranking official of the federation.

The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing Japan's proposals:

1.—The judges, referees and other officials in football, basketball, volleyball, and baseball shall be appointed from a third country. For example, for a game Japan versus China, officials from the Philippines shall act as the judges.

The judges for other athletic sports shall comprise a reasonable number of Chinese and Japanese staff.

The judges for the swimming sports shall be appointed a same number from each member country.

2.—That the world's Olympic system of awarding championship be adopted in the Far Eastern Championship Games.

Japan also proposed the change of dates of holding the Far Eastern Championship meet on account of the inconvenience of the participants from that country who are students or school boys. This matter is under study of the contest committee. Should a change be made, the probable date will be the second week of June, 1934.

Wimbledon's Most Varied Field On Record

Eleven Nations Represented In Men's Last Sixteen

FARQUHARSON OUT: MISS SCRIVEN'S ESCAPE

By A. Wallis Myers.

London, June 30.

WIMBLEDON'S last singles sixteen came into line yesterday. The survivors represented eleven different nations — the most diversified field in the history of the meeting to enter the fourth round, and a visible proof of the game's expansion.

America heads the list with four challengers; England has three — all winners of their last match in "straight sets" by the way; nine other countries have a single champion. The quota of France has rarely been so small in the last decade; four of the invaders left in are new to Wimbledon.

Every day has had its individual hero. Yesterday Roderick Menzel, of Prague, filled the role. To beat Farquharson, the conqueror of Perry, in three sets was a great coup for Czechoslovakia; it stamped Menzel as a great player.

Farquharson is celebrated for his variations — his inspired days do not always recur — but he found the Czech's type of game very different from that offered by Perry. Menzel is not only a prolific maker of top-spin, using it for his ground strokes as well as for his service, but a shrewd student of the replies which his pin will provoke.

He knows what the ball is likely to do when it drops on the other side of the net; the stroke is not completed when it leaves his racket.

FARQUHARSON'S HANDICAP

Now Farquharson is also a master of spin, but mainly of under-spin. He prefers the flat drive for his generation; the drive with top-spin impedes his own. Thus his long artillery was crippled by the enemy's method of attack; he could not make his long, low forcing shots, for which his volleys skill mainly depends.

His length suffered serious reduction, and when he came in on strokes that lacked their usual extension Menzel often enjoyed a picnic with his passing shots.

In addition, the Czech, serving his high kick on a fast-drying court, could curtail many rallies by advancing to the net himself. Overhead he was often deadly, his height and telescopic reach giving him the widest range. Farquharson could collect only eight games.

AUSTIN IMPROVED OVERHEAD

England had only one of her trusty trio in court yesterday. I did not think the Austin-Gledhill match a particularly exhilarating spectacle. The young American, once a much brisker mover, was too prone to dawdle between the rallies; he almost reminded me of the man who could not eat beef because he was too tired to reach for the mustard. Perhaps his recent Australian tour — almost a novelty for Americans, by the way — had left its physical reaction.

Austin might have played more sparkling tennis but, for the limitation of his opponent. He took a long time to win the second set, which swung backwards and forwards like a pendulum. Gledhill rarely attempted a close quarter attack; many slow exchanges were seen. Austin would have run out in the sixteenth game, but for two lucky net-cords which came to the American. In one the ball, sailing out of court, travelled nearly a yard along the net before it fell in Austin's court.

Do not imagine that Gledhill did not give the gallery some brilliant shots, but they nearly all came from his forehand wing. Not that Austin did not deserve his complete triumph. The winner's smashing showed a sensible improvement, and one cannot doubt that his stroke training with Capt. Caulfield, now of the Melbury Club, who was mainly responsible for Miss Sheila Hewitt's remarkable advance, has borne fruit.

PRENN'S SERVICE STRENGTH

Both Stefani and Prenn were in capital form. The Italian has rarely played better on turf than when he annihilated Andre Merin.

and the German was serving so brilliantly against Dr. Turnbull that he rarely required to come to the net. Last time Prenn played Vines — it was in the inter-zone match in Paris last year — he took nine games in sequence off the champion. They meet to-morrow in the fourth round.

The longest singles fight of yesterday was an all-South African affair, and it ended in the rather unexpected victory of P. D. B. Spence over Kirby. I say unexpected because Spence has played very few singles matches this year; it was thought he might not stay the course. Nor was he feeling happy inside at the end of a gruelling third set.

One thought that if Kirby had run him round the court in the fourth set Spence might have finished his career.

But Kirby elected to come in; Spence passed him in short rallies, squared the match, and then — doubtless to his joy — found that Kirby himself was through. At least, that was my impression of a prolonged battle.

GERMANY LOSES VON CRAMM

Von Cramm, of Germany, did not show his Rott Wies form against Sutter. This was rather a disappointing Centre Court duel. The American, without bustling, could always hold his man, and only in the third set did he experience the sharp edge of Von Cramm's service. This was not the Von Cramm who beat Austin and Shields and won the German championship last year. Sutter has now to meet Hughes, and the winner will probably engage Crawford.

In the women's last sixteen England has seven representatives — an inspiring ratio. America comes next with three, France and Germany each have two, and Italy and Switzerland one each. The nations are spread out in both fields.

Miss Scriven and Mme. Mathieu both had perilous journeys yesterday. The former was within four points of defeat by Miss Nancy Lyle; the French champion was only separated from disaster by a single stroke.

The battleground for Miss Scriven and Miss Lyle was a distant court, with accommodation far too limited for the sightseers. Those who jammed themselves in the crowd saw a curious match. Miss Lyle started so shakily that Miss Scriven, without any menacing strokes, took four games very quickly. Then Miss Lyle won six and the set — a remarkable reversal.

MISS LYLE LOSES RANGE

She played more engaging tennis than Miss Scriven, using her low drives on both wings to rake the lines and corners, and treating the gallery to several dainty drop shots.

Miss Scriven appeared tired — "a throat," it was reported, had brought her down — but she kept commendably steady in the second set and came within a point of a love break. Temporarily Miss Lyle had lost her fine range and accuracy, but one felt that they might return — perhaps to dominate the match once more.

Not until Miss Scriven, after many long rallies, reached 4-2 in the final set did Miss Lyle come to her best again. She played beautifully in the next two games, to draw level. Then Miss Scriven

JACK DEMPSEY MARRIES MUSIC HALL STAR.

Honeymoon in Reno.

Elko, Nev., July 19. Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion who has turned promoter, and Hannah Williams, Broadway musical comedy actress, were married here to-day by a justice of the peace. They motored from Salt Lake City and left after the ceremony for Reno, where the new Mrs. Dempsey was divorced from her first husband, Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of Otto H. Kahn, the banker, a few months ago. Dempsey's former wife was Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress.—Associated Press.

GREATER INTERVAL BETWEEN ROUNDS.

Bright American Idea To Cut Fatalities In Boxing.

NEW YORK.—A suggestion that the interval between rounds in boxing contests be extended to two minutes as a measure designed to reduce ring fatalities, has been submitted to the American National Boxing Association by its President. The suggestion was made by Dr. Julian R. Brandon, of San Francisco.

"There never was a heart built to stand the terrible strain of three minutes of hard fighting with only one minute of rest," announced Dr. Brandon. "The minute rest does not allow the heart time to come back to a normal beat."

"A boxer starting to fight three more minutes while his heart still is accelerated or, in other words, still is beating too fast, dilates his heart and when this goes on to an acute dilation fatal results often follow. It is the cause of the death of many boxers who are supposed to have died from a punch."

"It is true some die from a blood clot on the brain, but more die of heart strain, either at the time or later on, or continue through life as heart cripples. "At least two minutes rest should be given between rounds and if this is done there will be fewer ring fatalities."—Reuter.

went to 5-4 and Miss Lyle to 6-5. Ever sound in a crisis, the latter drew out of immediate danger with a love game. Making fewer errors than her opponent in the next two games, she battled her way home.

MISS FELTHAM'S FINE EFFORT

Miss Feltham at her best is a match for almost any player. Yesterday she struck one of her good, though not one of her luckiest, days, and nearly dismissed the French champion. She won the first set to four, but found herself 4-2 down in the second. Racing for everything, and missing very little, she not only recovered the lost ground, but had a match ball in the tenth game. A side-line drive passed a ball's width over the chalk. It was like missing a putt for the match on the 18th green. She never got as near to victory again, and Mme. Mathieu celebrated her reprieve by taking the final set from two.

Mrs. Burke brought credit to America by beating Mrs. Michell, and Miss Nuthall's match with Miss Ridley was brief enough to suggest that the winner has now recovered from her swollen ankle. Mrs. Whittingstall lost a set to the best young player in Scotland to-day. Mrs. Moody was never threatened by Miss Hecley. Mlle. Payot had to wage two "vantage sets" before she could subdue Fri. Von Ende-Pflugner, a talented young player from Germany.

I must not forget to mention that Borotra, flying from Paris, came back to a Wimbledon which had not seemed quite the same without him. The crowd shouted their welcome and added more applause when he won two doubles matches, the second with Miss Nuthall. We shall see Borotra and Brignone in court to-day against Spence and Tuckey. A breezy match is in prospect.

BOUT FOR LONDON

PETERSEN'S DYNAMIC RISE IN RANKING

$15,000 Purse Offered World Champion.

JEFF DICKSON THE PROMOTER

London, July 18.

Mr. Jeff Dickson has invited Carnera to meet Jack Petersen, the British heavyweight champion, for a $15,000 purse, the bout to take place in London on September 18.

One of the most meteoric advances in recent years, from the amateur state to professional eminence, has been made by Petersen. In little more than a year of winning an amateur title, Petersen has taken part in bouts for big money. His earning this year will be many thousands of pounds.—Reuter.

Carnera won his world title when he knocked out Jack Sharkey in six rounds in New York on June 29.

Petersen is undoubtedly the leading heavyweight in Europe at the moment. He retained his British title against Doyle when the latter was suspended for six months for foul blows in the two rounds that the fight went.

Sharkey waited a little more than a year for his first defence of the crown he won by a hairline decision on June 22, 1932, from Max Schmeling of Germany. He is credited with a fortune of $700,000 at the age of 31, all garnered from his ring exploits.

Carnera's victory brought a sigh of relief to his creditors, for almost on the eve of the title bout he filed a petition in bankruptcy listing his liabilities at $9,825 and his assets at only $1,182.

SENSATIONAL BOWLING BY LANGRIDGE IN DRAWN TEST MATCH

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES OF LOCAL F.A.

$16,000 Required In Coming Season.

GOVERNMENT LOAN TO BE REALISED

"The Association cannot go on at this rate," said Mr. W. L. Alexander, Hon Treasurer, at the first meeting of the newly elected Hong Kong Football Association Council, yesterday, when the financial plight of the Association was revealed.

Mr. Alexander quoted losses for the seasons 1931/32 and 1932/33, amounting to approximately $14,000, and added that the Association would have to make at least $16,000 to meet the expenses of the coming year.

"We have no Interport this year in Hong Kong and will have to send a team up to Shanghai. This will probably cost the Association $3,500 at a minimum cost."

New Board Room

It was also decided by the Council to accept the very kind offer of Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming, their auditors, of a room in which to hold meetings of the Association. This offer would save the Association $27 a month.

Major C. M. Manners was in the Chair and supported by Mr. G. T. May, Hon. Secretary, Mr. J. S. Logan, Asst. Hon. Secretary, Mr. W. L. Alexander, Treasurer, Mr. J. Ralston, Capt. Fleetwood, Mr. T. A. Mitchell, Mr. J. D. Bush, Insp. James, Mr. F. H. Barnes, Mr. A. R. Hughes and Mr. Darlington.

After the monthly accounts and minutes of the last meeting had been adopted and confirmed respectively, Mr. Alexander, in reviewing the financial position of the Association, said that their present financial position showed a Government loan of $6,000 and an overdraft of $2,500. During the 1931 and 1932 seasons the Association lost approximately $14,000 the cause for the loss in the former year being the withdrawal of the Chinese from the League, which resulted in a big loss in gate receipts.

Before concluding his discussion on finance, Mr. Alexander proposed that all competition games such as the Lai Wah Cup, the Governor's Cup, the Shield games, both Senior and Junior, should be played earlier on in the season.

Interest Maintained

The gate receipts were the result of Chinese attendance, and the speaker thought that by the time the competitions had been played off, as in the last season, the Chinese population had lost interest in football. He proposed that a committee be elected to go into the matter.

It was proposed by Capt. Fleetwood that the League management Committee and the treasurer be appointed to go into the matter.

Mr. Ralston then suggested that in view of the grave financial position of the Association, the treasurer be empowered to realise the Government loan at a minimum 4 per cent premium. Mr. Mitchell seconded the proposal which was carried.

Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming were re-elected auditors for the monthly re-muneration of $50.

The following officials were elected for the ensuing year:

Messrs. G. T. May and J. S. Logan were re-elected Hon. Secretary and Assistant Hon. Secretary respectively.

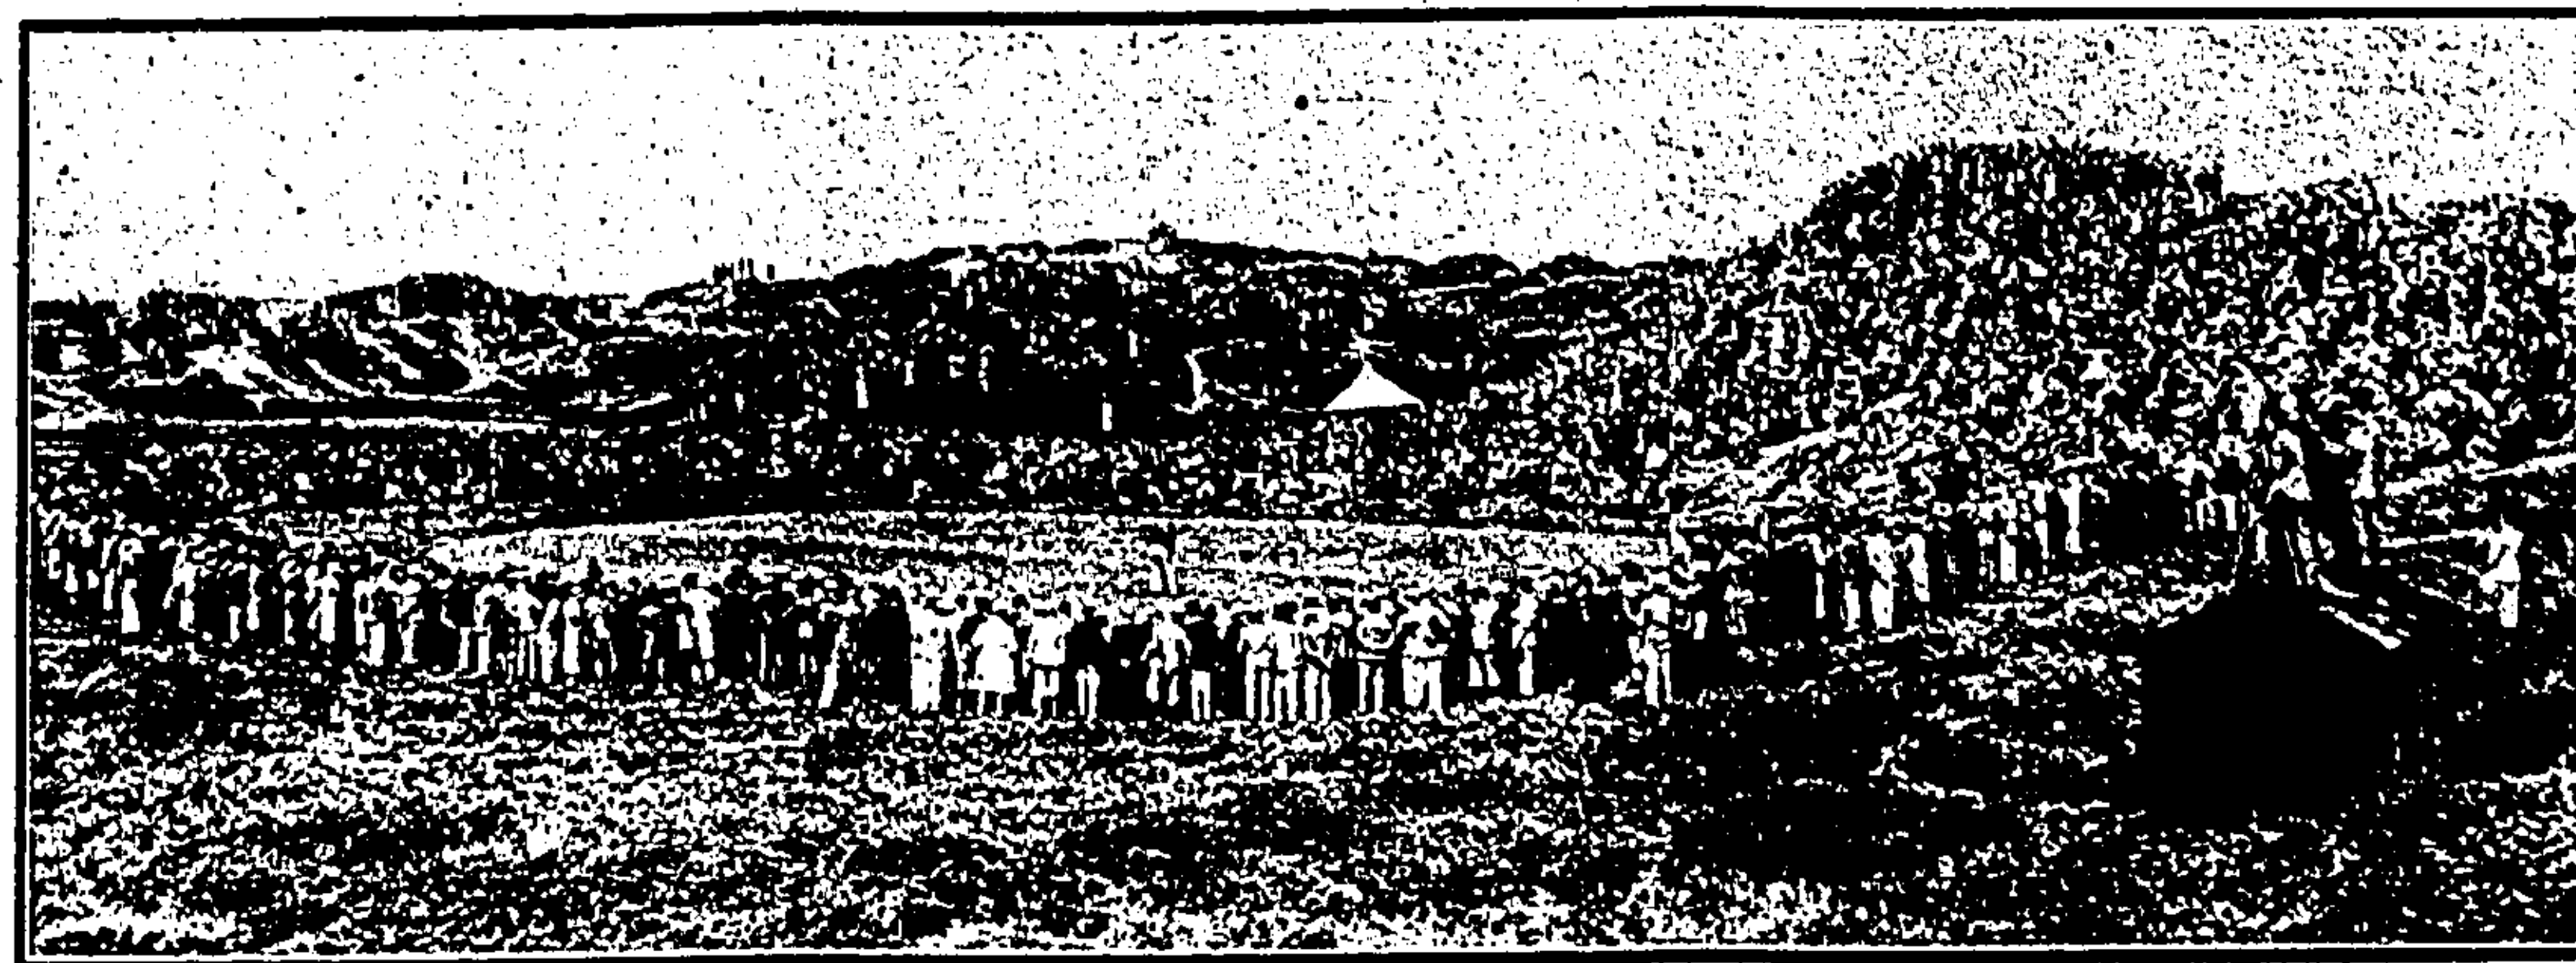

Messrs. H. K. Lee and A. Goldenberg to be members of the Council.

Appeal Board: The President and the three vice-presidents.

Emergency Committee: Messrs. T. A. Mitchell, J. D. Bush and Capt. Fleetwood.

Referee Committee: Capt. Williams, F. H. Barnes and H. K. Lee.

League Management Committee: Messrs. James A. Goldenberg, Darlington, A. R. Hughes and J. D. Bush.

ALFRED LACEY putting at the 34th against Walter Hagen in the Ryder Cup contest at Southport. The American won by 2 and 1, but Britain regained the trophy by 6½ points to 5½. A huge gallery followed Hagen's progress with tremendous enthusiasm. (S. & G.)

London, July 15.

A. E. Pellia won the British Epee Championship here today.

A record which has stood since it was made 52 years ago, by Dr. Munro, was equalled by B. H. Page, and old Cambridge Blue, when he won the United Hospitals mile in 1 min. 31.4 sec. at Motspur Park.

HENDREN SCORES 301 NOT OUT

WEAKENED YORSHIRE XI RECEIVE CHECK

TOWNSEND HAS BAD LUCK

London, To-day.

Patsy Hendren has broken all individual batting records in the present English cricket season. On Monday he scored 301 not out in the Middlesex total of 591 for 6 against Worcester, but owing to Nigel Haig's late declaration on account of Patsy's brilliant batting Middlesex had to be content with only five points.

Townsend was most unfortunate to miss a century in each innings against Northants by a single run. In the first innings he compiled 99 and followed this up with 106—a brilliant feat for a fast medium bowler. Northants, who were without Clark, were beaten by 157 runs.

Yorkshire, who were without Sutcliffe, Macaulay, Verity and Bowes, were held by Hampshire to a first innings win.

J. C. Squires played a brilliant knock for Surrey on Saturday, scoring 236 of the home county's total of 345. Lancashire failed by 41 runs to snatch major points.

Warwickshire, aided by centuries by the Rev. J. H. Parsons and Bates and good bowling by Hollies, retained their position in the championship race as the result of a win over Leicester.

Hendren's score of 301 is the seventeenth century to be recorded in the history of the County Championship, and is the highest score of his career. Archie MacLaren, with 424 for Lancashire against Somerset at Taunton in 1895, holds the record individual score, while the world record is held by Don Bradman, who scored 452 not out for New South Wales against Queensland at Sydney in the 1929-30 season.

BARRACKING OF BOWES.

Watson Dazed For Over An Hour.

London, June 5.

There was an unpleasant incident in the Yorkshire-Lancashire match to-day, when a short-pitched ball, sent down by Bowes, hit Watson on the cheek.

The batsman lay dazed in the pavilion for over an hour.

The crowd became so angry with Bowes that the game was held up until the barracking had subsided.

SWIMMING HINTS

Simple Back-Stroke.

By SID. G. HEDGES.

No style of swimming is more important than back-stroke, for this is essential in nearly all methods of towing a drowning person to safety. As it happens, the simplest form of back-stroke is the one used for life-saving, and so every swimmer should learn it as soon as he has a fair mastery of the breast-stroke.

First you must acquire the correct position. Hook your toes under the rail of the swimming-bath, or rest your heels on a convenient piece of bank, until you are stretched face upwards along the water.

The arms can help to support the body by performing gentle paddling movements down by the hips. Lie quite limply, with head well back, and with the middle of the body afloat.

After a little practice you may even release your feet and scull yourself along head-first by working the hands with a downward, scooping action.

The Real Stroke.

Then you may begin the real stroke. At the outset, the legs are straight and together along the surface.

The recovery action starts with the dropping of the feet until the shins are at right angles to the thighs. Do not allow the knees to spread apart or rise in this movement.

Next, kick the feet upwards and outwards with the utmost vigour. This will straighten the legs until the whole body has the form of a letter "Y". But no pause is made here—the legs instantly begin to sweep together again, like the closing of a pair of scissors blades, until the ankles meet. As a result of this kick you will be driven along head-first.

Allow a moment or two after the kick before beginning the next recovery, so that you have a chance to glide smoothly with body and legs straight, from the impetus gained.

Position Of The Hands.

Usually, in this simple back-stroke, the hands are held on the hips, clasped beneath the back, or folded across the chest. As you gain experience, however, an arm action may be added to the stroke. The easiest way is for the hands to perform a short paddling movement at the sides of the body—drifting out 12 or 18 inches, then driving in again to the sides.

Afterwards, you may care to develop the over-arms back-stroke, in which both arms are carried over backwards through the air, and enter the water side by side beyond the head, thence sweeping in two great semi-circles just beneath the surface until they come once more to the sides. The kick already described is used for this over-arms stroke.

Another variation is to carry the arms over, through the air, and round the surface, one at a time, in a windmill fashion.

TOURISTS 86 FOR 1 ALL OUT 225

SUSSEX ALL-ROUNDER'S 7 FOR 56

ROACH AND CONSTANTINE BAT WELL

London, To-day.

In spite of magnificent bowling by James Langridge, the Sussex all-rounder, the second Test match between England and the West Indies was left drawn at Old Trafford yesterday.

After Roach and Headley had added 86 for the second wicket, Langridge, bowling his spinners with a perfect length, caused a sensational collapse, the tourists being dismissed for 225.

Langridge had 7 for 56 in 17 overs to complete the "double" of a 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in a season. He is the first player to accomplish the feat this season, and this is the fourth successive year that he has performed the feat.

Commencing the second innings with a lead of only one run, the West Indies lost Barrow without a run on the board, Clark again proving his value as a shock bowler. Roach and Headley, however, played cautiously at the commencement of their big partnership and when Roach stepped in front of a well disguised ball from Langridge the pair had added 86 runs.

Roach after a dogged start scored freely all round the wicket. He scored 64 out of 86 in an invaluable stand.

Headley, who was playing steady cricket instead of his usual dashing style, fell a victim to one of Langridge's cleverly flighted deliveries and returned an easy catch to the Sussex player at 95. Scoring 169 not out in the first innings Headley scored only 24 out of 95.

Head, joined by Grant, his shipper, saw the century raised, but at 112 he provided Langridge with his third wicket, Hammond bringing off a good catch in the slips. Six runs later half the side were out when Wiles went out to Langridge and was smartly stumped by Ames. 118-5-2.

Grant and Constantine added 13 runs before the skipper was taken in the slips off Langridge. Da Costa left one run later, Sutcliffe giving Clark his second wicket.

It was at this period that Constantine collared the bowling. He and Achong, who scored ten, added 59 for the eighth wicket before the latter was stumped by Ames off Langridge. Constantine continued to treat the bowling with scant respect, but Jardine had so blocked his best scoring strokes that it was left to Valentine to score the majority of the runs before Constantine's downfall.

Attempting a big hit off Langridge the brilliant all-rounder was clean bowled. He had scored 64 out of 96.

Eleven runs later the innings closed when Verity held a catch off Martindale to give Robins his only wicket in the innings. The game was then abandoned as a draw.

The West Indies, who lost the first Test by an innings and 27 runs at Lord's, will play the third Test at the Oval on August 12.

Douglas Jardine played a great captain's innings for England. His 127 was the result of a chanceless display in the face of "body-line" bowling by martindale. Jardine steered the bumpers cleverly past the six "policemen" on the leg side. Batting for 286 minutes he scored 127 out of 256 and included eight boundaries among his best hits. He participated in a seventh wicket partnership with Robins which realised 140 runs in 120 minutes.

THE BATTLER

"Don't you believe it?"
 "Yes."
 Nick knew it must be true.
 "You know how I beat them?"
 "No," Nick said.
 "My heart's slow. It only beats forty a minute. Feel it."
 Nick hesitated.
 "Come on," the man took hold of his hand. "Take hold of my wrist. Put your fingers there."
 The little man's wrist was thick and the muscles bulged above the bone. Nick felt the slow pumping under his fingers.
 "Got a watch?"
 "No."
 "Neither have I," Ad said. "It ain't any good if you haven't got a watch."
 Nick dropped his wrist.
 "Listen," Ad Francis said. "Take another again. You count and I'll count up to sixty."
 Feeling the slow hard throb under his fingers Nick started to count. He heard the little man counting slowly, one, two, three, four, five, and on—about.
 "Sixty," Ad finished. "That's a minute. What did you make it?"
 "Forty," Nick said.
 "That's right," Ad said happily. "She never speeds up."
 A man dropped down the railroad embankment and came across the clearing to the fire.
 "Hello, Bugs!" Ad said.
 "Hello!" Bugs answered. It was a negro's voice. Nick knew from the way he walked that he was a negro. He stood with his back to them, bending over the fire. He straightened up.
 "This is my pal, Bugs," Ad said. "He's crazy too."
 "Glad to meet you," Bugs said. "Where you say you're from?"
 "Chicago," Nick said.
 "That's a fine town," the negro said. "I didn't catch your name."
 "Adams, Nick Adams."
 "He says he's never been crazy, Bugs," Ad said.
 "He's got a lot coming to him," the negro said. He was unwrapping a package by the fire.
 "When are we going to eat, Bugs?" the prize-fighter asked.
 "Right away."
 "Are you hungry, Nick?"
 "Hungry as hell."
 "I hear most of what goes on."
 "That ain't what I asked you."
 "Yes. I heard what the gentleman said."
 Into a skillet he was laying slices of ham.
 As the skillet grew hot the grease spluttered, and Bugs, crouching on long nigger legs over the fire, turned the ham and broke eggs into the skillet, tipping it from side to side to taste the eggs with the hot fat.
 "Will you cut some bread out of that bag, Mister Adams?" Bugs turned from the fire.
 "Sure."
 Nick reached in the bag and brought out a loaf of bread. He cut six slices. Ad watched him and leaned forward.
 "Let me take your knife, Nick," he said.
 "No you don't," the negro said. "Hang on to your knife, Mister Adams."
 The prize-fighter sat back.
 "Will you bring me the bread, Mister Adams?" Bugs asked. Nick brought it over.

BRITISH WIVES OF FOREIGNERS

Faults in The Government Bill
 In nearly all ways the artificiality of de-nationalised woman remains a chattel, someone whose fate is decided for her from the outside, not a being following her own will about her loyalty and patriotism. Depest of all injuries is it to tear from one's soul the love of one's motherland—to be tossed over to a foreign land like a mere abandoned chattel of no particular value. The Lord Chancellor's Bill makes even the existing law a little worse for such women. At the moment, if a British-born woman's husband acquires a foreign nationality, she may make a declaration that she desires to retain her British nationality. The new Bill puts a time-limit of six months upon even that one little concession, for which she has to "contract in," as it were!

British Women's Demand.
 Nearly all of the Lord Chancellor's Bill is in the teeth of the expressed wishes of the majority of our Dominions; of the millions of women organised nationally and internationally; of Recommendations VI. of the Hague Nationality Conference requesting States to introduce into their laws the principle that the nationality of woman should not be changed on marriage without her consent—and, most surprisingly of all to the British Government's representations at the League of Nations and our present Prime Minister's declaration to a deputation in April, 1929, confirmed next January by the then Foreign Secretary. Hence the Bill comes bringing not peace but a sword.

A passion for a so-called legal uniformity—which, after all, might be reached along the route of justice as well as that of injustice—and a leaning towards the recalcitrance of South Africa and Ireland's recent policy are the two factors now so adverse to women. Most countries outside our Imperial Commonwealth are making women the arbiters of their own nationalities. British women are not, after the bitter lessons of the War and the Peace, in the least likely to take less.

The wisest course would be for the Government to drop its Bill and adopt the one presented in the House of Commons. Surely the outcome of the struggle for the franchise taught politicians something about women's determination upon serious matters?

Governor-General Visits Boys' Farm

The annual closing exercises of the Boys' Farm and Training School at Shawbridge, Que., were made memorable for the 150 boys of the institution recently when they were honored by the presence of the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, who addressed the school and gave out the prizes. Accompanied by E. W. Beatty, K.C., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific railway, who is also president of the Boys' School, and a number of directors and well-wishers of the institution, His Excellency was the object of a great ovation by the boys on the arrival of the special train at the Farm. This is shown in top photograph of the lay-out. Lower left, the Governor-General is shown shaking hands with Major Ralph Wilcock, D.S.O., superintendent of the School, and at the right His Excellency is acknowledging the plaudits of the boys from the steps of the special train. It was the first time in the 25 years' existence of the School that a Governor-General of Canada had taken part in the closing exercises of the institution. His Excellency, addressing the School, stressed character as being of vital importance to success in life.

"I know how to do it. He won't remember nothing of it. I have to do it to change him when he gets that way."

Nick was still looking down at the little man, lying, his eyes closed in the freight. Bugs put some wood on the fire.

"Don't you worry about him none, Mister Adams. I seen him like this plenty of times before."

"What made him crazy?" Nick asked.

"Oh, a lot of things," the negro answered from the fire. "Would you like a cup of this coffee, Mister Adams?"

He handed Nick the cup and smoothed the coat he had placed under the unconscious man's head.

"He took too many beatings, for one thing," the negro sipped the coffee. "But that just made him sort of simple. Then his sister was his manager and they was always being written up in the papers all about brothers and sisters and how she loved her brother and how he loved his sister, and then they got married in New York and that made a lot of unpleasantness."

"I remember about it," Nick said. "Of course they wasn't brother and sister no more than a rabbit, but there was a lot of people didn't like it either way and they commenced to have disagreements, and one day she just went off and never come back."

He drank the coffee and wiped his lips with the pink palm of his hand.

"He just went crazy. Will you have some more coffee, Mister Adams?"

"Thanks."

"I seen her a couple of times," the negro went on. "She was no awful good-looking woman. Looked enough like him to be twins. He wouldn't be bad-looking without his face all busted."

He stopped. The story seemed to be over.

"Where did you meet him?" asked Nick.

"I met him in jail," the negro said. "He was busting people all of the time after she went away and they put him in jail. I was in for a cuttin' a man."

He smiled, and went on softly: "Right away I liked him, and when I got out I looked him up. He likes to think I'm crazy and I don't mind. I like to be with him and I like seeing the country and I don't have to commit no larceny to do it. I like living like a gentleman."

"What do you all do?" Nick asked.

TOO ROUGH FOR THE LIONESS

Daring Exploits Of Vanderbilt Safari.

TRAVEL FILM MADE

Nairobi.

An extraordinary tug-of-war between a motor lorry and a lion was the feature of a big safari to Serengeti Plains, from which Mr. George Vanderbilt, 18-year-old grandson of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, has returned to Nairobi.

A carcass fastened to the end of a rope attracted a pride of lions, and whilst they were devouring it Mr. Vanderbilt, dismounted from the lorry and daringly took cinema pictures within a few yards of the lions. Finally, all except one lioness retreated to the bush, while Mr. Vanderbilt retreated to the lorry.

The feast finished, the lioness seized the rope and began to pull the lorry, the driver of which then engaged the engine, and much to the lioness's surprise, drew her along. After a few seconds the lioness slunk away.

Mr. Vanderbilt who made a travel film, "Devil's Playground," in Central America, is engaged on another film featuring East Africa and ending in Timbuku. He is so impressed with Kenya that he has already made plans for the erection of a big hunting lodge on the fringe of the Serengeti Plains.—

The encounter between New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox was abandoned owing to rain. Results as cabled by Reuter:
